INTRO

In a time of low trust and high expectations, consumers and society are expecting more and better from businesses. With rising uncertainty from climate change, geopolitical tensions, supply chain disruptions and technological risks, building resilience is crucial to enable long-term sustainable and inclusive growth. Integrating sustainability into core business operations not only creates long-term value for stakeholders but also helps companies mitigate risks and adapt to change.

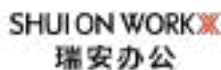

A key step for businesses is a sustainability agenda: a commitment to incorporating Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) principles into the corporate purpose, strategy, social impact, stakeholder engagement and the navigation of geopolitics. However, implementation can be challenging for businesses, especially when it comes to evaluation. To address this challenge, business leaders need to work towards developing globally recognised tools, institutions or standards for measuring sustainability that can be applied to industries worldwide.

The conference will explore the intricacies of accelerating the green transition and measuring sustainability, with insights from experts from across industries. Followed by a ceremony to announce this year's Sustainable Business Awards winners.

Sustainable Development for Generations

Sustainability has been embedded into the DNA of Boehringer Ingelheim since its establishment in 1885. As a family-owned pharmaceutical company with a history of over a century, Boehringer Ingelheim take a long-term vision for the well-being of the generations to come. The company is committed to researching breakthrough therapies to continuously improve the health of humans and animals.

Responding to the increasing challenges in global health, environment and other aspects, Boehringer Ingelheim launched the strategy of Sustainable Development for Generations (SD4G) in 2021, which embeds all initiatives addressing health, economic, social and environmental challenges into one global collaborative network, that connects people across business units, functions and geographies to work on the common goals.

SD4G represents how we can do more to contribute to a sustainable world and a healthier future, by collaborating to make a positive impact for our patients, people and the planet, focusing on three pillars: More Health – for good health of people and animals, More Potential – for good health of communities and our people and More Green – for good health of the planet.

In China, sustainability is deeply rooted in the core business of Boehringer Ingelheim. In 2021, Boehringer Ingelheim combined social development priorities and future business directions and identified six pillar projects for advancing SD4G ambitions: Total Stoke Solutions, Mental Health Patient Engagement and Ecosystem Activation, Stop Rabies, ADCE, BI Community – Education Programs and More Green Series Program. Looking into the future, Boehringer Ingelheim will continue exploring the upgrade of the SD4G strategic framework, aiming to roll out more initiatives that can both drive sustainable business growth and create impact for social development.

Through the Sustainable Development for Generations strategy, Boehringer Ingelheim is committed to further strengthening cooperation with partners from all walks of life, making positive contributions to building a more sustainable world and a healthier future, and achieving the United Nations 2030 Sustainable Development Goals at the earliest date.

SPEAKERS

Ms Holly Lei

Shanghai Chapter Vice Chair, European Chamber; Senior Vice President, Covestro Group President, Covestro China

Holly Lei has taken over as President of Covestro China based in Shanghai, effective July 1, 2019. With more than 20 years of experience in cross-cultural management around the world, Lei is the first local female leader for this position.

With a strong technical background in chemical engineering and material science, Lei started her career at Bayer Material Science (the predecessor company of Covestro) in 1999 as a technical representative, and has since held various management positions of increasing responsibilities focusing on sales, technical service and R&D in Greater China and the APAC region. As a seasoned leader strong at managing dispersed teams, she devoted her cross-industry insights and customer centric mindset to develop focus industries for Covestro's Business Unit Polycarbonates in Greater China and the APAC region. In her role as Global Head of Electrical, Electronics & Appliances (EE&A), BU Polycarbonates, Lei helped Covestro strengthen its industrial leadership by enhancing the global CMF (color, materials, finish) capabilities, transforming Covestro from a material supplier to an innovation partner.

Apart from her business success, Lei is also an affectionate people leader and excels at fostering an environment that allows people to flourish and develop to their fullest potential. As an avid ambassador of diversity and inclusion (D&I) at Covestro, she is actively involved in promoting D&I and equality in the workplace.

Lei is also a supervisory board member of GEA Group AG, Vice Chair of the Shanghai Chapter of the European Union Chamber of Commerce in China, and Vice Chairman of the Shanghai Chemical Industry Park International Experts' Consultancy Forum.

SPEAKERS

Mr Fei Li

Associate Director, CDP China

Fei Li is the Associate Director of CDP China. Currently, he is supervising Corporate and Supply Chain (CSC) and natural resource conservation projects and leading partnership development in CDP China Office.

Since he joined CDP in 2017, Fei Li has been working to raise the awareness and management capacity of companies in China, especially from the FMCG sector, towards environmental risks and their ESG performance. Also, he has explored how to use green finance mechanism to incentivise Chinese companies to introduce environmentally friendly supply chain policies and promote sustainable procurement practices.

Prior to joining CDP, Fei Li served various organisations of United Nations. He contributed to the implementation of Green Jobs Project in ILO's Asia Pacific Region. Later, he was responsible for grants approval and management for the Global Environment Facility Small Grants Program in UNDP China Office.

Fei Li graduated from Michigan Tech University with dual master's degrees in Environmental and Energy Policy and Applied Nature Resource Economics. He published articles in Energy Strategy Reviews and other International and Chinese journals on renewable energy and carbon emissions trading.

Ms Lei Chen

Anchor, Producer; Chief Consultant of Arts and Culture, Shanghai Translation Publishing House; Founder of Salon de Lei.

Lei Chen, a prominent figure in the media industry, excels as an anchor and producer at Shanghai Media Group. Notably, she holds the role of Chief Consultant of Arts and Culture at Shanghai Translation Publishing House and serves as the Administration Director for Shanghai Fashion Industry Development Council. Chen's dynamic contributions extend to being the Founder of Salon de Lei, an NGO dedicated to fostering art and culture.

Chen's educational journey encompasses a Master's degree in TV Journalism from Goldsmiths College, University of London, and a Bachelor's degree in British and American Literature from Shanghai Normal University. She has achieved significant recognition, including being an Ambassador for Red Cross Shanghai Society and City Ambassador of Brisbane, Australia. Additionally, she holds the distinction of being the first Chinese TV Presenter featured on the cover of BBC NEWS Worldwide and CNN Prime Time News Feature.

Her work history from 2019 to 2022 highlights her role as Chief Presenter and Executive Producer at LEI WORKS, SMG. She spearheaded the creation of impactful documentaries, such as "EMI Mansion, a Century Dream in Shanghai" and "Madam Soong Ching-Ling." She has also curated various documentary series and films that explore cultural and historical aspects. Furthermore, Lei Chen served as the Executive Secretary General of the World Laureates Association Development Foundation, coordinating with Nobel Prize-winning scientists and overseeing projects that promoted scientific awareness and collaboration. Her role contributed significantly to advancing global scientific engagement and facilitating meaningful research initiatives. Chen's achievements extend to founding Salon de Lei, whose mission is to create a cross-disciplinary platform that integrates art, culture, science, and business, through projects and advocacy focused on sustainable development and technological innovation. By establishing Salon de Lei, Chen tries to bring more public awareness and recognition on women's role and significance across various aspects all over the world. Chen also serves as the Ambassador of Red Cross Shanghai Society and Brisbane City.
